At the center of the Kellogg Institute’s activities are its faculty fellows—more than 100 faculty members from 21 academic departments, centers, institutes, and schools across the University—who engage in research on the Institute’s core themes of democracy and human development, as well as international topics more broadly.

What can I do as a Kellogg Faculty Fellow?

- Join us at our monthly fellows luncheon! Good contacts, good conversation, good food…meet other Kellogg faculty fellows, visiting fellows, and graduate students…at noon on the first Monday of each month during the academic year.

  Contact: Denise Wright, Program Coordinator at dwright1@nd.edu • 631-8523

- Attend the Institute’s weekly, interdisciplinary Lecture Series—Tuesdays at 12:30 pm and Thursdays at 4:00 pm most weeks when classes are in session. Look for upcoming talks in the Institute’s weekly email or on the Kellogg home page—kellogg.nd.edu.

  Contact: Therese Hanlon, Events Coordinator at tpost1@nd.edu • 631-4150

- Present your own research to the Kellogg community—or suggest guest lecturers from other institutions. Respond to the call for lecturers we send out each semester or talk to us anytime.

  Contact: Sharon Schierling, Associate Director at sschierl@nd.edu • 631-8524

- Join a current Kellogg working group—or propose a new one around scholarship in a particular area of focus.

  Contacts: Working Group chairs to join an existing group or Sharon Schierling, Associate Director, for a new group

- Organize a research conference, workshop, or event such as a lecture, seminar, or film series related to Kellogg themes of democracy and human development.

  Contact: Sharon Schierling, Associate Director

- Gain a Kellogg-funded research assistant and mentor one of the University’s brightest undergraduates—through the Institute’s International Scholars Program.

  Contact: Holly Rivers, Assistant Director at hrivers@nd.edu • 631-6023

- Apply for a grant!

  - Further your research with a Kellogg research grant, a faculty residential fellowship, or a collaborative faculty grant

  - Develop a new undergraduate course

  - Take your students on an international field trip partially supported by an international educational opportunity grant

  Before submitting a proposal, discuss your ideas with us.

  Contact: Sharon Schierling, Associate Director
Get to know our Kellogg graduate students. The Institute attracts graduate students from around the world and works to integrate them into the Kellogg community.

- Meet some of our current students: kellogg.nd.edu/students/grad/
- Direct your own PhD students to Kellogg funding opportunities
- Include graduate students in your research projects

Contact: Denise Wright, Program Coordinator

Encourage excellent candidates to apply to the Kellogg Visiting Fellows Program. We particularly encourage applications from researchers proposing to collaborate with Kellogg faculty fellows.

Contact: Denise Wright, Program Coordinator

Send us your news! We can often help you with publicity and/or get the word out on our website and in the Kellogg newsletter about new publications, honors, or policy work.

Contact: Elizabeth Rankin, Writer/Editor at erankin3@nd.edu • 631-9184

Submit a working paper to the Institute’s peer-reviewed Working Paper Series, which rapidly disseminates research by faculty fellows, visiting fellows, and guest scholars. Faculty Fellow Robert Fishman serves as series editor.

Contact: Elizabeth Rankin, Writer/Editor

Introduce your students to Kellogg undergraduate opportunities to engage the world:

- Kellogg/Kroc Undergraduate Research Grants
- Experiencing the World Fellowships
- Summer Internships
- Quechua Summer Language Fellowships

Contact: Holly Rivers, Assistant Director

Teach a course related to one of our undergraduate minors.

- International Development Studies Minor
- Latin American Studies Program Minor

Contact: Holly Rivers, Assistant Director

Keep the Kellogg community up to date on your research by updating your Kellogg web profile—just let us know what you would like to add or change.

Contact: Elizabeth Rankin, Writer/Editor

Tell the world you are a Fellow of the Kellogg Institute for International Studies. Put your affiliation on your departmental and personal website and in your email signature. Include a link to the Kellogg home page and to Facebook, if you use it.

Serve on a Kellogg committee. We periodically ask faculty fellows to serve on various advisory and selection committees.

Follow us on Facebook.

kellogg.nd.edu