

For Graduate Students

We are delighted to welcome you to the Kellogg Institute for International Studies—a vibrant interdisciplinary community centered on research themes of democracy and human development.

As a graduate student, you have multiple opportunities to engage with Kellogg to enhance your wider experience at Notre Dame. In turn, your participation in Institute activities enriches the Kellogg community of scholars.

Your engagement with Kellogg can take many forms, from graduate student discussion seminars to our monthly fellow luncheons to collaborating with faculty on research. In addition, we welcome your new ideas for building our joint intellectual community and complementing your interests in international studies.

Browse the links below and don't hesitate to contact me for more information.

—Denise Wright

Coordinator, Visiting Fellow and Graduate Student Programs

What can I do as a graduate student affiliated with the Kellogg Institute?

● Get to know other grad students.

- Meet our current students, who come together at Kellogg from around the world.
- Participate in the Kellogg graduate student blog. This new virtual community keeps you up to date on special grad-student events and serves as a forum for pre-circulating works in progress and receiving feedback from your peers.
- Organize and participate in Kellogg seminars run by graduate students and hosted by the Institute—like these comparative politics seminars.

● Reach out to our Kellogg Faculty Fellows... the approximately 100 Notre Dame scholars whose research is at the core of the Institute's work come together from across the University.

● Meet our Visiting Fellows and Guest Scholars... outstanding scholars from around the world undertaking international research in a variety of disciplines.

● Attend the Institute's weekly, interdisciplinary Lecture Series... Tuesdays at 12:30 pm and Thursdays at 4:00 pm during most weeks when classes are in session. Subscribe to the Institute's weekly email or visit the Kellogg home page for a list of upcoming talks.

- Join a current Kellogg working group—or work with a Kellogg Faculty Fellow to propose a new one! Working groups bring together faculty and students from across the University to focus attention on emerging research themes or topical, interdisciplinary issues. Contact group chairs to join.

- Apply for a Kellogg grant!

- Further your research with a graduate research grant. (If you are in the PhD in Literature Program, look into research fellowships in Latin American literature.)
- Complete your dissertation or field research with a Dissertation Year Fellowship.
- Present your work with the help of a conference travel grant.
- Gain professional development with support of a professionalization grant.

- Explore additional Kellogg opportunities.

- Still deciding about whether to enroll in a Notre Dame graduate program—or know someone who is? Look into our Kellogg PhD Fellowships.
- Interested in the study of Quechua? Apply for a Quechua Summer Language Fellowship.

- Post your own Kellogg web profile. Tell the Institute community about yourself and your interests. Great for promoting your work and establishing connections, your profile introduces you to the Kellogg community.

- Send us your news. We can help you get the word out about new publications, honors, or policy work. We also like to keep the Kellogg community informed about what graduate students are up to and especially appreciate photos that illustrate your fieldwork!

- Follow us on Facebook... a quick way to stay in touch with the Institute.

- More ideas? Be in touch! dwright1@nd.edu.